Plot [edit | Edit source]

Hundreds of years ago grandfather Dracula founded the terrible clan of DaSilvas, the Transylvanian vampires . Dracula Transylvanian vampires . Dracula bequeathed a book to his descendants in which he wrote down the mysterious recipes for a multitude of wonder drugs. This book, which was Dracula's legacy, also contained his greatest secret of how inexperienced, blood sausage- nourished young vampires become bloodsuckers. The transformation of the young vampires took place at the festive Matura Vampira. Some of Dracula's descendants settled in France and over time adopted the French way of life. The DeVampongs switched from blood to blood red Bordeaux wineand tomato juice. Since there was currently no heir to the throne in the distant family castle in Transylvania , it was agreed that the youngest DeVampong offspring Maurice will marry the blood sausage-eating Comtessa Martha DaSilva on the day of Matura Vampira. But since Maurice was more interested in Martha's younger sister Elvira and never dreamed of becoming a bloodsucker, he and Elvira stole Dracula's legacy and ran away with her. The renegades went into hiding in a circus in Italy, where they successfully performed. They had a daughter who, after many years of career, emigrated to America and her parents dalies their son Pino to look after.

32 years later, Martha still has a thirst for revenge after Maurice and Elvira betrayed her of her inheritance to become a real bloodsucker. Together with Maurice's brother Ricardo, his human cronies Roquefort and the 120-year-old and toothless vampire master, she forges sinister plans and smuggles the young vampires Huberta and Siegfried into the DeVampongs so that they can recapture Dracula's legacy. This turns out to be more difficult than planned, as Huberta falls in love with her cousin Vampino (Pino) DeVampong. Pino, however, is interested in the human girl Bella von Rabenstein. Since the book's plans for reconquest are not making progress, the Transylvanians find Dracula's ruby ring just as they should. After the senile master puts on the ring, his body is taken over by Dracula's spirit and gives him unimagined magical powers. Now the DaSilvas pose a real threat to the ketchup vampires.

Background [edit | Edit source]

The series had 26 episodes between 1991 and 1994. It was produced by ANIMA 3 Filmproduktion GmbH Bad Nauheim. An attempt was made to tell a story that suggests a creepy threat, but does not involve any violence.

Radio plays [edit | Edit source]

The Ketchup Vampire was also produced as a radio play series by the radio play label OHHA, but not all episodes. On each cassette there are two episodes that are told by Wolfgang Draeger.

DVD [edit | Edit source]

The first season of the series was released on DVD in a box from Renaissance Medien. The total running time of all episodes is 325 minutes. [1]
